Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for your past support of the Center. You know what a special place the Center is and the role it plays in enriching the artistic education of our community. We are honored to have had your support in the past.

Being one of the largest Community Arts Center in the tri-state, we pride ourselves on the number of outstanding teachers who call the Center their home. Dr. Terry Durbin, one of the most sought-after Suzuki teachers in the nation, has lead our Suzuki Violin program for the past three years. Inna Terekhov's piano students regularly place in the top tier at local and regional competitions. Just a few weeks ago, one of Yuko Tsujimoto's long-time violin students played at the White House!

Other avenue of our work is providing for those students who are talented but are unable to afford the full cost of tuition. Through the generosity of organizations such as the Junior Women's Club of Wyoming and Impact 100, we are able to provide music lessons to those who would otherwise be unable to take part in this type of hands-on creative process.

As you know, there are also many costs associated with keeping quality programs going which are sometimes overlooked, such as building upkeep, office expenses, utilities and insurance. While we have implemented quite a few cost-saving measures this year, our expenses regularly exceed the amounts we collect in tuition. Grants from the Fine Arts Fund and the Duke Energy Foundation help in bridging the gap, but without individual donations from individual supporters, we would be unable to continue providing our programs at the current level.

As another year draws to a close, we ask that you keep the Center for the Arts in mind as you make your final decisions regarding charitable giving for 2009. No matter how large or small, your support will go far in keeping the highest level of art, music and dance instruction alive and well for years to come.

Thank you again for your patronage and have a safe and restful holiday season!

Sincerely,

Milan Dukic, Executive Director

Willy Wonka Summer Production
