What is SUZUKI KIDS?

SUZUKI KIDS is a fun and encouraging way for your child (ages 3-7) to learn music. We teach your child to play the violin using the Suzuki Method –one of the worlds' most celebrated methods of music learning.

The Suzuki Method of music education is based on a nurturing and holistic philosophy

We believe that music should help each child develop mentally, physically, spiritually, and emotionally. These cornerstones will help a child succeed in life, even if music is not their final choice.

In SUZUKI KIDS we

- involve parents in private and group lessons
- begin young
- teach in an enjoyable environment
- play together in groups
- move in small, attainable steps
- teach music playing before music reading
- use the Suzuki Method repertory sequence

What is it like?

Every week your child has a 20 or 30-minute private lesson (based on age and readiness) with a certified Suzuki Method Instructor. In addition, your child has a weekly 1-hour Group Class where they play with other students their age and develop a strong musical foundation through movement and singing.

Each SUZUKI KIDS instructor is a skilled, certified, conservatory-trained string musician

Each Group Class is co-led by SUZUKI KIDS director Jennifer Cluggish-Leong and MUSIK KIDS director Mary Rekers
